THURSDAY, AUGUST 8, 1918.

Even at the risk of committing lese majeste, Emperor Karl would be justified in reminding the Kaiser of his promise more than a year ago to end the war in six months with a peace treaty. Where one of the parties to a contract fails to live up to its terms, it ceases to be binding on the other party.

Red, white and blue are the three stripes of the new Jugoslav flag which was unfurled on July 4 at Washington, and which, after the close of the present war, will be the flag of a new member of the family of free nations. It takes in the Serbs, the Montenegrins, the Bosnians, the Slovenes and the Croats.

A communication from General Pershing to the War Department places the number of German prisoners taken by American troops in the fighting of the past two weeks at 8,400. In view of the fact that the principal aim of American soldiers is to kill Germans, and not to capture them, it may safely be inferred that the German losses in killed men at the hands of the Americans has been something appalling.

There is unobscured evidence that President Wilson has changed from an opposition that once seemed unalterable to universal military training and has come to favor a plan whereby this nation can keep permanently prepared to resist enemy attacks. This war has been a great awakener, and it will be a cause of rational gratification if its lessons shall make him the leader of those forces which have fought through many discouraging years to bring safety at all times to the United States.

The "tower" from which the Kaiser watched the launching of the latest German offensive, whose objective was Paris and a German-dictated peace, is now within range of allied artillery, while the All Highest is supposed to be in "Camouflage" somewhere in the vicinity of "Chemin-des-Dames." Reiser described his emotions from the "tower"; it would be interesting to have his record of the Kaiser's emotions as he witnessed the "strategic retreat" of his beaten forces now under way.

Figures on army aviation fatalities in this country just made public, disprove the popular impression of an exceedingly high percentage for the large number of men engaged in the service. These figures show a total of but 155 deaths from September 1 last year to July 26 this year, or an average of one fatality to every 3,400 flying hours. This establishes a new world record of safety in air training. The public failed to take into account in its estimate of the risks the greatness of the effort represented in this branch of war service.

A few short weeks ago Berlin was taunting the "lightning-trained" soldiers of the American army and telling the world that they could not fight. Now, no less a person than the mighty Ludendorff apologetically and hopefully tells his people back home that some time his super-soldiers will become accustomed to facing the American troops. What a commentary it is on those forty-year-trained Teuton fighters, educated by Prussia to inflame fear into the hearts of the enemy, who have been compelled to turn their back on the doughboys and seek safety in flight.

British press comment on the fourth anniversary of Britain's entrance into the war is very generous in conceding that the present favorable outlook for allied success is chiefly due to the speed with which America threw its man power into the struggle after the Germans launched their big offensive on March 21, and that American strength will be the main reliance in hastening the victorious ending of the conflict. It is fully realized that American participation is just now getting under full headway, and that the strength it is capable of putting into its effort within the next year or two is almost unlimited.

The renomination by a substantial majority of Representative C. C. Carlin to Congress from the Eighth District is very gratifying, in view of the splendid record he has made as a safe and sound legislator throughout his more than ten years of service in the House, where his ability is generally recognized. It is no reflection on either the popularity or the splendid qualities of his worthy opponent for the nomination that the voters of the district were unwilling to substitute him for one whose service at all times has met their full approval and has materially contributed to the large influence that the Virginia delegation exerts on national legislation.

For Better Municipal Government
The force of aroused public interest in better city government was splendidly manifest in Tuesday's election on the charter amendments, a vote of more than three to one in favor of the changes being cast. Thus from a cumbersome and costly form of government, adopted some years ago as an experiment, the awakened intelligence of the people has overwhelmingly voiced its approval of a progressive system which provides the necessary machinery for a more simple, efficient and economical administration of the city's affairs.

In supporting the changed form of government submitted by the City Council after a careful study of the recommendations by the board of municipal experts employed by the Civic Association, those public-spirited citizens who have taken the lead in urging these reforms have made no claim of perfection for the changes that were proposed, but they did insist that they are a long step in the right direction, and the result is especially gratifying in its overwhelming endorsement of the soundness of their contention, as well as in the showing of keen interest by our citizenry in the best that is attainable in municipal government.

While it is not contended that under the charter changes the limit has been reached in government responsive to the needs of a modern growing city, nevertheless the foundation of a system is laid which admits of such progressive improvements as experience may demonstrate to be necessary. Under the changes authorized, the abolition of the Administration Board, which has imposed on the taxpayers a needless annual expense of $35,000 in salaries, is reckoned among the most important. Besides the saving of this expense, the transfer of the duties heretofore vesting in this board to the necessary heads of existing departments, co-operating as a cabinet around the Mayor, after the fashion of the Federal government, places the responsibility for the success or failure of municipal government on the Mayor and his official advisers, thus arming the people against inefficient administration, a power which they do not now adequately possess.

Another change is the adoption of the municipal budget system, which imposes on the Mayor and his cabinet the duty of preparing and submitting to the Council a prospective appropriation bill in keeping with the anticipated revenues of the city and departments of the various departments and institutions. Heretofore the Administrative Board has been in the habit of recommending to the Finance Committee a budget exceeding the anticipated revenue annually from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000, thus making worthless the consideration of such a budget by the Finance Committee. As a further safeguard for the public interests and the money of the taxpayers, the City Auditor and City Attorney are elected directly by the City Council without recommendation from the Mayor.

Hard Stedding for Critics
THIS has been a hard season for critics of the United States government. During the months immediately following the declaration of war against Germany they were in their glory. Never before had been heard such an anvil chorus. In the general welding of hammers in the early stages of the conflict, President Wilson was the chief of the victims. A little Washington cabal, whose influence was by no means confined to the capital, went without sleep that it might have more time to deal with him and all his works. Open criticism was not so insistent or invidious as that whispered from mouth to ear, and few of the President's unfolding war plans or domestic policies escaped belaboring from hostile tongues.

His shafts falling broken from the imperturbable chief of the administration, unfriendly criticism was turned upon members of his official family. Perhaps never before had any public man been so bitterly assailed as was Secretary of the Navy Daniels. There was no concealment of the determination to drive him from the Cabinet, and a weaker and less able man would hardly have survived the attack.

Secretary of War Baker was the next victim. The verbal and journalistic assaults upon him were even more unenvied and determined than those that had been launched against his colleague of the navy. Accused of being a pacifist, a pro-German and an incompetent, the cabal openly boasted that it proposed to hound him out of public life. All that was in the early stages of the war preparatory months. Where are those critics to-day? They have been silenced, and even from the lips of most of them have been wrung words of admiration for the results that have been accomplished by the men whom they so freely reviled and derided. It is at once a happy omen for the future and a tribute to the great things already done that the severer critics of the government long ago have been silenced. More than six months ago these harpies were put to shame. With Wilson, the acknowledged leader of the allied world, his policies proved sound in the fiery crucible of war; with a navy barely second to that of Great Britain and doing its full share in the policing of the seas—a share that has won encomiums from the world's greatest naval commanders—and with an army abroad now nearing the 1,500,000 mark, which already has turned the tide of war against the enemy; with that vast number landed in France without the loss of a single troop, transport, and with millions more in training here, all ground has been cut out from under the feet of the critics. The big facts of to-day are too heartening and too vital for today's more than enthusiastic applause. It is foolish to waste time on the carping critics who, under the guise of patriotism, sought to impede the administration. They have their answer, and are in full retreat.

The German government's news factory has had General Hindenburg restored to life and health, after keeping the public mystified concerning his whereabouts for some months past. He is needed again to serve as a negotiator for the crown prince's latest folly.

The "German vote" in America so far has failed to contribute very materially to the Kaiser's hopes of achieving a political triumph in the country where he figured his planting of Kultur would yield abundant fruit.

Much Ado About Nothing

BY ROY K. MOULTON.

The Letters Home of a Perspiring Emperor.
Somewhere, Sometime in August.
Dear Gussy,—Sixty of our brave men brought in two Americans yesterday. It was a great victory. Give all the school children a day's vacation. I don't want them to get too much excited. As you know, we have won the war. Our own six dear children are very well, not one of them can get shot, for iron crosses. The crown prince weighs 760 pounds in his medals. Next to the Sultan of Turkey, he is the greatest soldier on our side. If they ever get a shot at him, they got to look quick.

I don't know when I will get home. Maybe not so soon as I told you, so don't keep supper hot in the kitchen. I got to whip France and England, Italy and America yet. I got all the rest cleaned up.

Gott is marching with us to victory, but I don't see him around nowhere.

When I impose my will upon the world, I will mention you and my six sons in it. It is all drawn up, and is in the brown teapot on the top shelf in the pantry.

I promised my people peace. Well, I have kept my word. About 70,000 of them have found peace in the last two months.

Be sure and wind up the watch on the Rhine every night. Send twelve more uniforms, and if you happen to meet my partner Gott anywhere, tell him to get busy and get on the job or He will make me out a liar. Yours hastily,

WILLY.

If somebody will get out a magazine without a picture of a beautiful but insipid looking young woman on the cover, we will be the first to subscribe to it for five years, regardless of the contents.

Junkies are the landed aristocracy of Prussia. It is a suggestive fact that they are noted for thieving and carrying off all the junk they can get their hands on. Hence the term.

Work or fight? Why, great guns, there are a lot of us who do both every day.

Missouri to the Front.
Missouri's surely to the front. Prompt on hand to do her stunt. Into line her boys all fall. When the country makes its call. She's always first to lift her load. And when you heard the bugle blowed, She blew it.

—Johnson County Democrat.

It is said on honor and oath that the meat the soldiers get to eat is better than that which is served in hotels and restaurants. But that is not saying much. We had hoped the soldiers were getting even better meat than that.

Good-natured Dr. Taft, of Yale, formerly President of this country, says we must send a large army to Russia. In a moment or two somebody will be touching the good doctor lightly on the shoulder and asking him blandly: "Who the ——— is running this war, anyhow?"

It has been noted that most of the negro soldiers going to France use the old-fashioned flaps, and not safety caps. Good sign.

"I am master by divine right, and I rule the world!"—Kaiser Wilhelm.

That's his story, and he's going to stick to it.

Young heiress student at an Eastern college, claiming that she cannot live on $125,000 yearly allowance, has petitioned the court for an increase in her income to $250,000. There is really some terrible suffering in this country. Let us pass the hat for the young lady in distress.

A Washington citizen advertises to the effect that he will be responsible only for his own debts. He's lucky. A lot of us can't go even as far as that.

Cincinnati has tied a can to the tail of the Jackhammer. What, Cincinnati? Yes, Cincinnati. These are strange times, as old man Tempora said to old man Mores.

"Germany is Soapsless," headline. Say it fast and it sounds like "hopeless."

Non-sensational occupation: Married man sitting on front porch at 2 A. M. trying to remember the excuse he used last time.

In certain European countries the people are suffering from a new disease called tricotitia, caused by the lack of soap. It is said to be more general in Turkey than elsewhere.

There is one thing to say of Grand Duke Nicholas. He is the tallest field marshal Russia has ever had.

That self-determination the Kaiser promised the small states turns out to be self-extinction.

A "stush" fund isn't much use right in the middle of the summer.

Industrial Hygiene Tobacco Workers' Risks.

Analysis of the tobacco dust from different establishments shows a considerable amount of nicotine. Stephens estimates that a cigar-smoker turns out a quantity of nicotine nearly equal to his nose and mouth cavity containing three ounces of nicotine. One drop of nicotine on the tongue of a cat or dog is sufficient to kill it. Tobacco dust is a serious health hazard. It is a cause of lung disease, and it is a cause of death among the tobacco workers. The tobacco workers are in a very bad way. They are being poisoned by the dust that they breathe.
